

Laura Fox-Lee's Biography

As one of the Parent Governors at Markeaton Primary, I wanted to support the school's leadership team to maintain and expand the excellent work I have witnessed since my children started Markeaton Primary four years ago. My previous work includes managing Playwork setting for the YMCA, providing alternative education opportunities for young people, working as a Youth Worker and creating and facilitating bespoke behaviour management programmes. As an informal educator, I believe I have strong interpersonal skills that help me to communicate with children, other parents, staff and fellow governors. I am currently a lecturer at the University of Derby. I teach on both the BA Hons Youth Work and Community Development (JNC) and the BSc Hons Child and Family Health and Wellbeing. This has given me an insight into child development, teaching to a curriculum, working in education and a desire to support the teaching staff who are the school's most important resource. I try to bring the skills I have learnt along the way to my role as a Governor at the school. I am fiercely proud of our School, and I enjoy being part of the Team of Governors that support the brilliant work at Markeaton Primary.
