To all Parents/Carers,

29.11.19

Some great pics this week from Twitter showing the children taking part in our Zero Waste Day!

Today was all about raising awareness of plastic in our oceans and the children really got into the spirit of it! There was also a competition for children to collect crisp packets – well done to our winners who received a prize and certificate in this morning's assembly.

In other news, our artwork, kindly purchased by our amazing PTFA, has started to appear on walls around school. We have selected male and female artists from around the world and asked the children to write little comments about what they like about each painting. This one of Frida Kahlo has sparked lots of interesting conversations (which I can hear as it is outside my office) and Holly, in Y2, particularly likes the colours and her floral headdress! It'll take a while to hang them all but watch this space for more updates!

And finally, it is our Shopping event and Christmas Fair this weekend. Tonight is the shopping event in the hall and tomorrow afternoon is the Christmas Fair. There is loads to look forward to and hopefully, all being well, there will be no rain. The forecast is dry and overcast so an improvement on last year! Also, a big thank you to all our parent/carer volunteers who are helping us with the children's trips to the pantomime...without your support we simply wouldn't be able to go! So thanks again.

Have a lovely weekend and hopefully see you tomorrow!

Mr I. Johnson
