

Weekly Word

Care Curiosity Determination

Dear Parents/Carers,

It would appear that the first lot of blue sky and sunshine we will see this week (and perhaps even this half term!) will be tomorrow!! I can't remember this much rain and this many wet plays in such a short space of time. And it seems there might be some snow on the way too – I won't lie, I am glad it's during half term and we haven't got that potential disruption to deal with too!!

In case you missed it, building work has begun on the new outdoor classroom. I am going to try and take a photo every day to show progress (don't worry I won't share every photo!). Hopefully after Easter we will be near to some kind of completion.

Middle left we have a photo of children in Y2 making the most of the new library books from the library service we have signed up to. It's absolutely great – teaching staff go on the website, type in their topic and then a few days later a box of books turns up linked to that topic! Reading for Pleasure continues to be one of our whole school targets and this is really helping children to rediscover (or start off) their love of books 😊

And bottom left, here we have two children getting all muddy as part of their outdoor learning day. With all the rain, the field is not really fit for lunchtimes but when it comes to this and using loose parts, it's perfect!!

In other news, I did send out a letter a few weeks ago asking for any future PTFA members to get in touch. So far we have had nobody step forward so if you're reading this and think you might be able to offer some support, let me know. It can be as little or as much as you want to get involved.

Anyway, enjoy half term and see on the 23rd 😊

Mr I. Johnson