20.1.2023

To all Parents/Carers,

It's certainly been a lot colder this week but overall, despite the occasional flurry, we have dodged any significant snowfall this week – much to the disappointment of the children!

Despite that, it won't have escaped your attention that a black Peugeot was left stranded on the field yesterday morning (wrapped in yellow police tape). Well, thank goodness the Mini Police team were in to help investigate what appeared to be Miss H's stolen car. Our tenacious detective in Y6s were able to examine the evidence and draw conclusions - pointing the finger to only one suspect. Even I was under suspicion!

Middle left we have children in Y1 identifying and discussing pictures of different Jewish artefacts. The children loved talking about them and asked really good questions about each one.

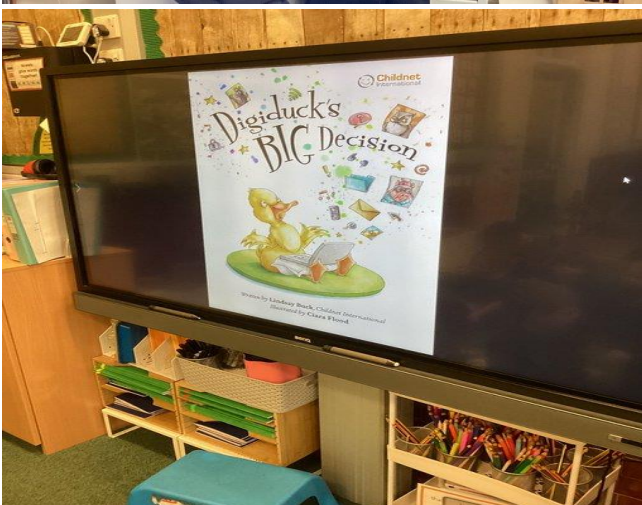

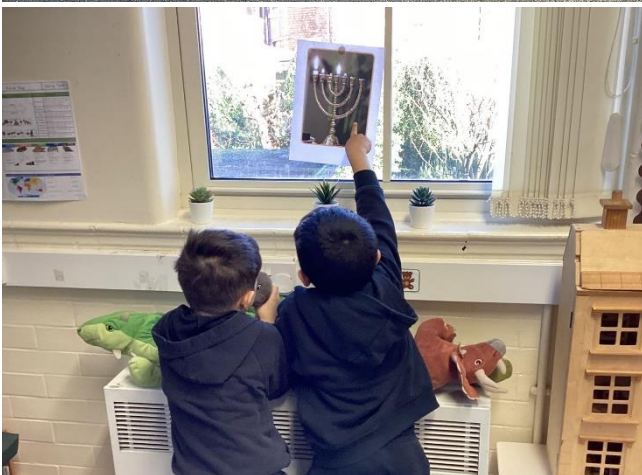

Bottom left we have children in FS2 who have been learning about how to be kind online. If you haven't visited it already, please check out our E-Safety section on the school website. It has lots of useful information, assemblies and websites about how to keep your child safe:

And finally, two things, you'll have seen in the news that the main teaching union NEU has voted to go on strike for four days. A separate letter detailing what we know so far and what the impact might be will be sent early next week. And on a lighter note, we would love to hear what accomplishments your child has achieved outside of school. So, if your child has got a certificate at a swimming gala, gained a badge at Cubs or something of similar magnificence then email me (head@) with a photo and details and I will collate it for a separate newsletter each half term. Can you please let me know if you are happy for the photo to be used as well.

Have a lovely weekend and see you on Monday!
