Care Curiosity Determination

17.11.2023

To all Parents/Carers,

I am not sure anything has generated as much excitement recently than the Christmas lights in the playground (and those we have inside the building). They look magical - and thankfully no stray footballs have brought them crashing down! You'll see them switched on tomorrow at the Christmas Fair; I hope you and your families can make it 😊 I'll be in goal for a penalty shootout so there is 50p well spent right there!

In other news, all about celebrating differences in FS2 this week. Yesterday they were looking at different homes for different animals. Check out the cool house they built for the class squirrel!

In Y5, here we have children designing and using their own equivalent fractions hopscotch – what a great way to learn about fractions and get some exercise!

Bottom left we have children in Y3 starting the week with some gentle stretches as part of their gymnastics lesson. Not a bad way to kick off a Monday morning!

And finally, another mention about the Christmas Fair tomorrow. It's 11am till 2pm and promises to be a great afternoon. It's our new PTFA's first event so please come along and support if you have some free time. I hear PROJECT D will be there so make sure you bring your sweet tooth!

Have a lovely weekend

Mr L Johnson
