

Weekly Word

8.7.2022

To all Parents/Carers,

It seems like we are entering another really hot spell of weather in school so before I get started, please remember water bottles, suncream and hats next week – it's going to be a scorcher!!

Top left, in slightly cooler conditions, are some Y4 children writing up their Mayan Myths. They have been working on these for a while now and we can't wait to see the end result – they certainly looked fully focused in this photo 😊

Middle left we have a Y2 child making a flower clay tile. Again, fully focused and enjoying the task in hand.

Bottom left we have children in Y1 learning all about algorithms – not a bad way to spend a Monday afternoon!

In other news, a huge thank you to everyone who supported and/or came to the Summer Fair. Despite the occasional downpour it was an incredible event and raised over £3500! The sense of community was great and it seemed like everyone had lots of fun – so thank you again. And a special mention to the PTFA who put in some seriously long hours behind the scenes to make it happen 😊

In case you missed it, we have decided that all monies raised at PTFA events will go towards the refurbishment of the upstairs library. This will be advertised on our totaliser in the playground and you will be able to see the progress being made.

And finally, two things...

Firstly, well done again to the Y6s. Their SATs results will be sent home tonight and they have done amazingly well. Secondly, thank you to all those who have completed the online questionnaire – your feedback is incredibly useful!

Have a nice weekend!

Mr I. Johnson
